

“Matt McClowry is a tall, clean-cut comedian out of Detroit. His standup is smart and analytical, full of unexpected leaps of logic, and delivered in a deep, distinctive deadpan. He’s funny and engaging.”

- Brett Hamil, CityArts

“With a voice for radio and movie star looks, McClowry can be intense and a bit intimidating in person. But on stage, he becomes your smart-mouthed brother who dares you not to laugh and you want to get to know him better — signs of a real star.”

- Gary Allison, Daily Tribune

MATT McCLOWRY

Matt McClowry does not easily fit the stereotypical image of a stand-up comic. But after a few moments of watching him on stage, it’s clear he’s a natural; with a laconic yet still faintly annoyed delivery underscoring sharply observed gripes about a host of modern absurdities. Originally from Detroit where he was voted “Best Local Comic” by the Metro Times, Matt has been touring coast to coast as well as posting appearances at many prestigious comedy festivals like Bridgetown and the Oddball Comedy & Curiosity Festival as well as racking up trophies as a finalist at The Laughing Skull Comedy Festival, The World Series of Comedy, The Great American Comedy Festival and The San Francisco Comedy Competition. He has appeared on the AXS TV series “Gotham Comedy Live”, was a member of primary cast of the FOX series “Laughs” and his album, “Uncomfortable” has been heard on SiriusXM’s Raw Dog Comedy.

“...Every day observations that don't sound done to death – his views are dry; his voice deadpan and his interplay with the audience spot on.”

- Rob Ross, PopDose

“Detroit-based Matt McClowry, for instance, has the skills to take something as simple as a Yankee Candle scent called “Wedding Day” and turn it into an hilarious commentary on the absurdity of a wedding.”

- Dylan P. Gadino, LaughSpin

“...It is as if he dares us not to laugh at what he says to say yet we cannot help from doing so. Smart humor is very difficult to present and McClowry does so with style and ease.”

- Amos Lassen
